By daytime she's Russian
And ruskin' away.
Or skittish or British
In Atkins array.
She's Greek to you nightly
Or Turkish delight
All flimsy and slimy
With spangles bedight.

But through the dresses folly got
Are all a little polygot
I assure you Polly's not

She's white and alight
Ture blue away.
Well read, well bred

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—It's indeed an impossibility to assume an attitude of strict neutrality when it comes to one's wardrobe. No matter what your mental state of mind your sartorial state must either be Russian or English when you pick out your spring suit for 1915. The only concession to neutrality is in tone for they are all shown in the neutral shades of Khaki. There is bound leaning toward the to be a decided British for the Tommy Atkins suits evolved from Khaki covert cloth are quite the choicest and sanest little garment imaginable.

As well as can be judged from these very early 1915 models, the Russian flare promises to stick by us if not close to us and the flare seems also to have rushed to midday's head in an astonishing manner to judge from her vells. These are actually boned or wired slightly around their edges to make them stand out in the approved mode of the moment. These new flaring vells are all of the finely meshed face veil patterns and are worn only with the tiny brimless hats. They extend down to the shoulders with a slight dip behind and some are finished with a binding of chenille, a wee fur edge or a band of cross grained ribbon. Grecian effects are seen more and more plentifully at the opera or the ball. The flowing lines and the soft draperies of these ancient modes lend themselves beautifully to the needs of the beauties of today. So prevalent are the fashions of old Greece becoming that Greek meets Greek more frequently than anything else these nights.

One lovely moyen age model is of mole color velvet hanging straight from the square cut out neck. A wide band of moleskin bands the flaring short skirt and forms a flaring collar at the back of the neck. An odd feature are the cuffs of moleskin which do not finish the long tight sleeves at the hand, but are set up about three inches above the wrist. From the neck down to the waist, or where the waist would be if there were any, is an elaborate embroidered design in dull silver. A girdle or loosely woven flat dull silver cord finished with two silver tasseled ends serve to break the long line of the gown a trifle and a bright touch of color is lent by a bunch of scarlet velvet strawberries at the collar.

Of course high boots with mole cloth tops are worn with this costume and a perky little three cornered moleskin hat with a band of the dull silver around the crown and a bunch of the velvet fruit nestling near the front of the tiny brim.

I have a good chance to sell stock ranch with stock and tools. From 320 to 1,000 acres wanted. Must have outside range and water on land. Prefer some timber. See me at once. Chilcote, 635 Main street 29-6t

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR TURNS GRAY, FADED HAIR DARK AND GLOSSY

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, straggled or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.
